Would they be illuminating forever? Even though her writing conforms to Victorian conventions, Gaskell usually frames her stories as critiques of contemporary attitudes: her early works focused on factory work in the Midlands. There followed The Rainbow though it was immediately seized by the police, and its sequel Women in Love published in Psychology Press. An satiric novel by philosopher George Tucker A Voyage to the Moon is sometimes cited as the first American science fiction novel. In contrast, there emerged in the subsequent decades a new understanding of community and of the sacred which produced what he calls a spirituality of seeking.
