In Girl with a Pearl Earring the gaze of the young woman is both transparent and mysterious, provoking curiosity, wonderment and speculation. Expressive, poignant and emotive, the novel had special appeal for Romanticism and Postromanticism readers as many of them thought it was not a work of fiction, but the exchange of real love letters. The scene captures the moment when Jesus announces to his twelve apostles that one of them will betray .

More generally, what makes something a movement? Yet from a certain perspective his novel was entirely different. Yet both the name and the concept stuck.

Sorry, your blog cannot share posts by email. Embittered by his punishment and true to the religious values of his times, Abelard proved incapable of perceiving erotic love as at the same time sublime and transcendental.
