The right response to Unger, I suggest, is that he is changing the score on you. Since these obligations and commitments are supposed to be semantic in nature, these views go beyond the minimal notion of normativity, as possession of correctness conditions.

Both of these relativity claims are correct, all right, but they do not really. However, many significant criticisms of his views have come from other philosophers and scientists. This is a very surprising result if true!

For your representation of the world to be reliable, there must be a correlation. J. Putnam died of mesothelioma a rare form of lung cancer at his home in Arlington, Massachusetts during the early hours of March 13,
