Taiwanese anti-invasion exercises and Chinese patrol flights are regular occurrences in the Taiwan Strait. They quote former Premier Lien Chan to the effect that by the year the mainland would be Taiwan's biggest trading partner, the most important destination for Taiwanese foreign investment, the major source of Taiwan's foreign exchange surpluses and the heartland of Taiwan's economic future: Heather Smith and Stuart Harris, 'Economic Relations across the Taiwan Strait: Interdependence or Dependence?'

After long being viewed as a flashpoint for conflict, relations across the Taiwan Strait are improving. This would mean that PRC claims that it has sovereignty over Taiwan are invalid. All cross-strait disputes have to be settled by peaceful means and on the basis of international law and the principle of equality. I think that the Chinese leadership is only proceeding cautiously because he and other Chinese leaders fear rebuff and a loss of face, as occurred in the case of the USS Pueblo and the USS Shephard.
